During the game players will encounter many creatures like villagers, animals you can eat or make products like beef, sheep, chicken, fish,... usually appears in the day. Building your world before the night comes, players need to find shelter because darkness will appear with the monsters and they will attack you, so initially, you need to dig a cave to get shelter then take advantage of the material to build a house and make enough items. Minecraft is simulated as in real life so you can be hungry and have to go for foods such as chicken, cow,... In addition to natural food, players can also be a. To get the country, sow and regain a large area of soil so that you can plant trees and harvest food. Attractive modes: In Minecraft, there are game modes like survival mode, creative mode, and super hard mode. In the survival mode, players will have to search for resources, build and find food. The player has a health bar so you know when he is hungry and when you need to find food. Also, if we are attacked by monsters, we will lose our blood, so I think we can stay away from the monsters in the cave or home at night. We can also attack craft weapons and destroy monsters. When killing animals or monsters the player experience will weigh up, the higher the experience points, the better the player will be able to build stronger armor. Creative mode: In this mode players have all the resources and tools, players can create their own way of creating a world of great works, going around the world without attacking and dying. The super-hard mode: this mode is very similar to survival mode, players live as real life, only one network to die, then the game will end, can't return to the previous world. It sets able to play with the subtle, suspension, has the experience as in real life. Graphics: The world of all things consist of 3D blocks with various materials such as earth, water, stone, wood, gold,... It is estimated that the game has approximately 36 million square cubics. If you just looked through the images in Minecraft then maybe the player would think that this game is low quality, mainly made for fun because the graphics look very classic in contemporary advanced graphics.
